Subject: Update regarding the First Nations' Emergency Services Society (FNESS) Occupational Health and Safety Study

The FNESS Occupational Health & Safety Research Team is currently making presentations to our strategic partners who have supported our research endeavours since the start of our project.

Our team is preparing a final report to explain the results and provide recommendations which will be released in Spring/Summer 2012.

Information updates about our study will be posted on the FNESS website (www.fness.bc.ca).

For more information about our research study, please contact either
